EVENT/// Lorens Holm – Tracing the Real field of architecture (lifelines)

Multi Media Installation/ In Conversation
28 September, 4pm (Centrespace, VRC, DCA)
Free - All Welcome

Tracing a real line (lifelines) will sketch out – curate even – an image cycle, a loop of visual signifiers, some of which are particular to me, some of which are familiar in spatial discourse. These signifiers make experience - of architecture, of the surface of the earth – possible. I have mine, you have yours.

Experience comes to us as an intersubjective field, the Real is the continuous confrontation with the materiality of experience. Because this field has a horizon but no edge (only more string knots scarification inscription footsteps through grass) it is always partial and always material. As is any signifier.

This event is part of : MAPPING THE FUTURE: PUBLIC ART IN SCOTLAND EVENTS SERIES///

A series of events composed of interdisciplinary talks, artist talks and an artist-led public action, to take place in Centrespace and in the city. The events series is part of the Mapping the Future: Public Art in Scotland symposia (6, 13 & 20 October, VRC and Meeting Room, DCA) and will start in the last week of September.
